The Benefits of Learning a Foreign Language

Indicative time: 20 minutes

Situation

As an English teacher, you want to motivate your pupils to learn foreign languages and to talk about their own experiences. You have chosen the article "The Benefits of Learning a Foreign Language", but it is too long and difficult for them, so you need to adapt it.

Task

Condense the article to about 100–120 words, keeping the key ideas and removing less important details. Adapt the language (grammar, syntax, and vocabulary) so that it is accessible for A2-level learners. Ensure the adapted text is suitable for use as a classroom reading activity.

Original Text: "The Benefits of Learning a Foreign Language"

Learning a foreign language is not just about memorizing words and grammar rules. It is a journey that opens doors to new cultures, people, and ways of thinking. Studies have shown that children who learn another language often do better in other school subjects, such as math and science. This is because learning a language trains your brain to think in different ways and solve problems creatively.

Additionally, speaking another language allows you to communicate with people from different countries. You can make new friends, understand other cultures better, and even travel more easily. In today's globalized world, many jobs require employees to speak more than one language. So, learning a foreign language can help you get better job opportunities in the future.

Moreover, learning a new language can be fun. You get to watch movies, read books, and listen to music in another language. It feels great when you understand what people are saying in a foreign language or when you can order food in another country by yourself.

In the end, learning a foreign language is a skill that stays with you for life. It helps you grow as a person and makes the world feel a little bit smaller – because suddenly, you can understand and connect with people from all over the world.
